Summary of parish council responses

Grove parish council put this proposal forward

East Challow parish council objects to the proposal. It contends that:

“in accordance with the assessment criterion that boundaries be aligned with defining natural or structural features, alignment of the parish boundary with Downsvie Road should be retained. Further, that it would be logical to straighten the parish boundary to align with the section of Downsvie Road from the northeastern corner of the Crown Packaging site east to the Denchworth Road/Mably Way roundabout, thus incorporating Stockham Farm (‘Letcombe Fields’) within this parish.”

Summary of other responses

Councillor St John Dickson has written in similar terms to East Challow parish council

Recommendation

To include Grove Technology Park within Grove parish, as shown on the attached map.

Justification

Once the Grove Airfield development is complete, Grove Technology Park will form the western edge of a continuous built up area covering the whole of Grove village. The technology park is accessed along Downsview Road, the start of which is in Grove parish. Someone unaware of parish boundaries would probably think that the technology park already lies in Grove parish.

The technology park sits on the eastern boundary of East Challow parish. As the crow flies it is three-quarters of a mile from the centre of the village. By road it is nearly two and a half miles away and can only be accessed via Wantage and Grove parishes. Whilst Downsview Road represents a good man-made boundary the perimeter fence of the technology park is equally effective.

The working group considers that the identities and interests of Grove are best served by placing the technology park within the parish. The western edge of the park is a good man-made boundary that will clearly define the edge of the built up area of Grove once the Grove Airfield development takes place.
